Excerpt: . . . ously. The other group, an international consortium of scientists led by Dr. Panos Zavos, a reproduction researcher, and his partner, Severino Antinori, an Italian fertility doctor, have stated their intent to develop clones for infertile couples. In January of this year, Dr. Zavos group announced that within 2 years it intends to clone the first human being at a site outside the United States. Capitalizing on the fascination with human cloning, other groups have established websites offering cloning services. We have a demonstration of that. Although federally funded human cloning research is prohibited, such privately funded research is not. In fact, no definitive Federal statute governs privately funded human cloning experiments. Experimentation in science has outpaced the law on the underlying issues raised by human cloning. As one of our witnesses, Dr. Arthur Caplan recently put it, the science horse ran out of the barn, jumped over the fence and has gone down the highway and the law is still hanging around the barn. The FDA has asserted that it has jurisdiction over human cloning, based on the Public Health Service Act and the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Is this a sufficient safeguard Although there is no Federal ban on human cloning, a number of states, 26 other countries and the United Nations have seen the need to enact some form of ban on human cloning. But to craft a meaningful and reasonable statute that is both sound in its science and consistent with human dignity, the Congress needs to ask the hard questions posed by human cloning research. The technique to clone other mammals has proved difficult and dangerous....
