Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Kass Ghayouri s An Era of Error sheds light on an Indian girl growing up in a period of racial segregation enforced through the legislation of the Apartheid government, in South Africa during the period of 1960 to 2000. Racial segregation was introduced to South Africa in the period of colonialization under Dutch and British rule. The lions in the South African game reserve marked their territorial boundaries, not allowing any other animal to encroach upon their land. The laws of the jungle sparked a significant idea in the mind of the white supreme government. The passbook regulated movement of blacks into urban areas. Two white policemen ransacked grandma s house in search of a black maid. Freda, the black maid shivered in a state of convulsions, when she was arrested for being in the wrong residential area. The end of high school arrived and Kay celebrated with her friends Cherry, Danny, Rona and Neil at the Durban Beach. They were in paradise, however racial segregation of public premise was visible. At an all Indian University, passionate and outspoken Indian students wholeheartedly expressed their intolerance for white supremacy. This led to total pandemonium, when the riot squad entered the University campus hailing bullets and tear gas, injuring masses. During the time of the Apartheid regime, Kay found it a liability being an Indian. She felt the humiliation when she was thrown off a park bench by a group of white kindergarten children. She felt the forced exile, ironically implemented by children. To add to the complication, amongst the Indian community a different form of religious and social class prejudice emerged based upon caste and class....
